

Roommates Wanted

I am a young man in my early 30's who is deaf and communicates using ASL. I would prefer to have roommates who are deaf so that we can communicate with each other. If my roommates are not deaf, I would like to have roommates who could learn ASL so that way I can be involved in the house and develop positive relationships with my roommates.

The house I am looking to move to is located in Aylmer, a community of about 7000 people in South Western Ontario. Aylmer is located 15 minutes from St. Thomas, and 25 minutes from London. While it is a smaller community, it is close to many amenities like grocery stores, shopping malls, sports venues, restaurants, movie theaters, hiking trails and more.

I don't mind meeting new people at times, but I also enjoy my own space. I like to watch movies and TV shows, sometimes with other people. I enjoy going to the movies, and would be open to going with friends. A roommate who enjoys movies, TV shows and video games would be beneficial.

There is a Day Program around the corner from the house I will be moving to. At the program, I focus on learning skills that will help me with my independence. My roommates would be welcome to join me at the day program during the day.

A roommate who enjoys working out and eating healthy would be beneficial, or a roommate who wouldn't mind joining me on my journey to be as healthy as I can be. I do enjoy working out, and there is a local gym close by, as well as fitness equipment at the Day Program I attend. I'm working on making healthy choices with my eating habits. I also enjoy activities like swimming, bowling, going to the beach, going for walks, among other activities.

My ideal roommate would be someone who enjoys similar activities and likes as me, but also understands that I like my own space at times. An ideal roommate would be someone who is deaf, or is willing to learn ASL so that we can communicate with each other. While I'm working towards gaining more independence, I would require 24 hour support in the home and community. I'm looking for roommates who require similar support to what I need. Someone who has some independence, but may require support around daily routines like cooking, budgeting and finances, safety in the community and at home, support with medication, as well as support working on goals.

Before moving in together, we would have the opportunity to meet, spend time together and see if we are a good fit as roommates.
